LUXURY RESIDENCES

PAJE VILLAGE LIVING. PERFECTED.

Paje is the kind of place that changes
people's plans.

What begins as a holiday becomes a conversation about staying longer, investing smarter, owning a rare piece of Zanzibar.

Moments from one of the world's most sought-after beaches, Hola Luxury Residences comprises fifty private villas, each with its own pool, arranged around a striking glass-fronted commercial hub. Boutique retail, wellness, dining and co-working — bringing to Paje a way of living, working and unwinding that wasn't available here until now.

In a setting defined by natural beauty and growing global demand, Hola Paje combines contemporary architecture, privacy and lifestyle to create an exceptional investment.

Six in the morning.
The tide is in.
And the kites are up.

THE DESTINATION

The only island that does all of this

Zanzibar offers something few destinations can rival: the Indian Ocean on one side, and the African wilderness on the other.

From Paje, the Serengeti and the Great Migration are less than an hour away by air. Kilimanjaro sits on the horizon. Stone Town — a UNESCO World Heritage Site shaped by centuries of trade and culture — is within easy reach.

Barefoot luxury. World-class nature. Cultural depth. International accessibility. It is this rare combination that continues to draw a new generation of global travellers, lifestyle buyers, and long-term investors to Zanzibar.

The island is entering a new phase of growth — driven not by speculation, but by rising global demand for destinations that offer both lifestyle and long-term value. And within Zanzibar, Paje is where that demand is focusing fastest on a finite supply.

Paje

Dar es Salaam

35 kms from the mainland.

A world away from ordinary.

Zanzibar is a semi-autonomous archipelago 35 kms off the Tanzanian coast, governed by its own elected council within one of East Africa's most politically stable nations. For international investors, the framework is coherent, the land title system is established, and the government is actively courting foreign direct investment.

The island sits six degrees south of the equator. That proximity shapes everything: temperatures hold between 25°C and 32°C year-round, the ocean rarely drops below 25°C. Two short rainy seasons give way to long dry periods that make this unique place where increasing numbers of people choose to live rather than merely visit.

In other words, Zanzibar is an established destination reaching its moment.

In the tranquil heart of a vibrant village

Paje sits on Zanzibar's south-east coast. Consistent trade winds and a vast shallow lagoon stretching almost two kilometres to the reef have made it one of the world's premier kitesurf destinations. That reputation drew the first wave of international visitors. The restaurants, beach clubs, and villa rentals that followed drew the second. The buyers investing here today are the third.

More intimate than the north coast. More authentic.
More cosmopolitan — without being overrun.
Hola lies 500 metres from the beach. Close enough to walk. Far enough from the tourist strip to feel like somewhere you actually want to live.

Here you are not watching Paje from a distance.

You are part of it. A village within the village.

THE LIFESTYLE

A village within the village.

Most developments give you a gate and a pool. Hola gives you something rarer — a place where life actually happens.

At the centre sits a commercial hub designed around the way people live here. A supermarket stocked for real cooking. A gym that earns the visit. A café where you linger. Co-working space for the days when work doesn't stop because the view is good.

SIGNATURE VILLA

The island wrote the brief

The inspiration behind this design comes from the natural beauty and soul of Zanzibar — its landscapes, textures, and coastal serenity.

The architects drew from the island's rich environment, blending organic forms, earthy materials, and open spaces that reflect the rhythm of nature.

Every detail is shaped by the harmony between land, sea, and culture, creating a timeless connection to the island itself. A design rooted in place, inspired by the essence of Zanzibar.

Zanzibar. Now.
Before the rest of the world catches up.

Tourism has grown from 260,000 visitors in 2020 to more than 917,000 in 2025. New direct routes are opening. International attention is accelerating. Prime supply remains finite.

Hola enters this market from USD 270,000 — with a full villa management programme ensuring ownership is effortless and returns are achievable whether you are here or not.

$64 million in active Zanzibar developments.

wFloton Africa has been operating in Tanzania since 2014 as a Class 1 licensed construction company and real estate developer, with three active Zanzibar projects worth over $64 million.

More relevant than any of that: we have already sold and completed a number of villa developments in Paje. We invite you to walk through a finished home and form your own view.

A person's legs and feet are visible from the back, walking barefoot on a golden sandy beach. The person is walking away from the camera towards the ocean. The beach is wide and flat, with gentle waves lapping at the shore in the distance. The sky is blue with some light clouds. The overall scene is bright and sunny, suggesting a warm, tropical location.
